Stirling is situated in the heart of Scotland, at the head of the national motorway and railway networks both providing high speed links to Edinburgh and Glasgow, which are a little more than 40 and 25 miles away respectively. More than 3.3 million people live within an hour's drive of Stirling itself.

The business of the Assessor's organisation is carried out from a single office location. Hillside House is a modern office of traditional design situated in Laurelhill Business Park in the Kings Park area of the city. There is ample car parking provided and the centre of town is only some 10 to 15 minutes walk away.
